For immediate release (Longmont, Colorado 11/21/08): Ribbon Cutting for State of The Art Manufacturing Facility in Longmont, Colorado.

Sangat Precision Machining & Grinding (www.sangatprecision.com) is pleased to announce a ribbon cutting to celebrate the grand opening of Sangat Precision Machining & Grinding in its new location 1900 South Sunset Street – Longmont Colorado’s newest state-of-the-art machining facility.

It’s no secret that many manufacturing jobs and projects have been lost to overseas competitors who happen to offer unusually low prices. Management at Sangat Precision is dedicated to bringing back American manufacturing opportunities previously lost to overseas companies. Such competitiveness is being restored in-part through a commitment to investing in the best possible machinery, equipment and facilities available.

“By investing in the best equipment and facilities available, we gain efficiencies and capabilities that few companies in the United States can match, let alone companies on the Pacific Rim. We believe that without quality and efficiencies, low prices mean little. By combining competitive pricing, with superb quality and customer service we feel we have a winning formula for winning a lot of lost business back from the Pacific Rim” says Jim Ray, President and CEO of Sangat Precision.

The ribbon cutting will occur December 4, 2008 at 1900 south Sunset St. suite 1-D in Longmont, CO at 11 am.

Sangat Precision Machining & Grinding provides precision machining and manufacturing services on a contract basis, and has particular expertise in machining high tolerance parts from difficult to machine materials and working with tight deadlines. The company specializes in working with Aerospace companies, defense contractors and firearms manufacturers.
